CHARLESTON.

The heroic defense of this noble old city, thus far unparalleled in this war, ought to, and doubtless will, encourage the hearts, and nerve the arms of the soldiers of the entire Confederacy. The ruined walls of Fort Sumter, still frown unyielding, defiant and determined resistance to Yankee aggression and conquest, and with but one can left to reply, the Yankees are afraid to attempt an assault, knowing they would be met in a hand-to-hand fight from the rubbish of the outer wall to the last extremity. What a contrast between the defense of this fort in Yankee hands, and that of Southerners' their own owners. With the attack on this fort the war commenced, and it was surrendered by its commander, Maj. Anderson, after three days bombardment without the loss of a single man; and for this so-called by the Yankees, "heroic defense," he was banished and fated throughout the North. Now, after months of the most terrible bombardment to which any similar work was ever subjected, and an expenditure of metal and ammunition almost sufficient for a year's campaign, the Yankees seem as far from the accomplishment of their object, as at the beginning.

A Yankee correspondent from the besieging army to one of the Northern papers, warns the people not to be deceived by the oft-repeated assurance that Charleston will be captured in a few days or a few weeks. He expresses his deliberate opinion, that if practicable at all, it would be the work of months if not years, and take an army of two hundred thousand men, to invest it by land and by sea.

Execution of Deserters.—We see a number of accounts of the execution of deserters, in one instance as many as ten at a time. It is evident that the most rigid discipline is determined on in future on this subject, all the milder measures having failed to check the evil of desertion. Those who are still out, if it be not too late, would do well to avail themselves of the general amnesty and peace offered by the President.

The "Diamond," formerly published at Ashville, St. Clair county, Alabama, has been revived by its proprietors, Messrs. T. J. and W. P. Bingham, but the name has been changed to "Ashville Vidette." We have received the first number, which is very interesting.

This first number contains an account of an attempt of some 8 or 10 brigades, composed of deserters and tory citizens, to rob the house of Mr. Larham of Jefferson county, but Mr. L. and his son succeeded in wounding two of their number, brothers named Watson and the balance fled. One of the wounded men was hung by citizens on Thursday morning and the other on Sunday following.

Mr. Morris Frank will have for the my of Virginia about the 15th and will take letters for the 44th and 45th Ala. Regts. in A. P. Hill's corps.

We are requested to state that John Brock, Esq., will leave for the army of Virginia, between the 26th and last of October, and will take clothing for the soldiers of the 10th Ala. Regiment, and all Ala. Regts. in A. P. Hill's corps.

Mr. Brock's frequent and successful trips of this character heretofore, for which he has the gratitude of the army and people, commands him to these who may wish to send clothing, as a most safe, reliable and vigilant agent.

The Store of Messrs. Blum & Frank will be closed next Monday and Tuesday, in consequence of these being holidays—commencement of the new year.

Affairs in the United States.—We had a very interesting conversation with a well informed gentleman, lately arrived in this city, from the United States, and who has had excellent opportunities of gaining information in different sections of the enemy's country.

He attended a public meeting in Ohio, which was addressed by Mr. Pugh, the candidate for Lieut. Gov. to the V. M. D. in that state. He says Mr. Pugh is a bold harraguer, in his denunciation of the Lincoln government, and their modes of conducting the war, and the objects sought by it. He says the opposition are united in Ohio against the Republicans, and will elect Vallandingham, if Burnside does not interfere with the freedom of elections, as he did in Kentucky.

In the city of New York, the People's Democrats are in the majority, but in the State are split up into factions, the War Democrats probably having the majority. The programme of the three parties may be thus stated: The Republicans will agree to nothing less than the complete subjugation of the South; the emancipation of the slaves; and the confiscation of all property and the destruction of our State Governments.

The war Democrats declare, if they succeed, they will offer to the South the "Constitution as it is, and the Union as it was; the withdrawal of the emancipation proclamation, and a general amnesty; which, if the South refuse, they will carry on the war till the Southern States submit.

The peace Democrats will offer the same terms to the South as the War Democrats; but, if they decline, reconstruction of the Union, they will let them go in peace, sooner than attempt a constrained Union.

It was the belief in New York, if Gov. Seymour had resisted the draft he would have been sustained by the people; but the want of nerve and the influence of Dean Richmond made him succumb.

Persons of intelligence informed him that had it not been for the fall of Vicksburg and the falling back of our troops in Pennsylvania, Lincoln could never have enforced the draft.

Many thousands of Meade's troops have been detached in order to be sent to Charleston; and though the conscripts, in considerable numbers, are sent to the army of the Potomac, they desert nearly as fast as they arrive. It is his opinion that Meade has no intention of advancing or fighting for some time to come.

The Negro regiments are sent further South. The white soldiers in the army of the Potomac, are bitterly opposed to negroes, and express their contempt and hatred on every occasion.

The Confederate cause has many sympathizers in Baltimore—probably a considerable majority—but they are held down, and crushed under the military rule of the Lincoln Government.

BY TELEGRAPH.

Special dispatch to the Montgomery Advertiser.

MARIETTA, Sept. 3.—Yesterday the enemy appeared in force at Loudon. After a skirmish of two hours, our troops fell back to Charleston, burning Loudon bridge. Passengers just from Chattanooga report all quiet at that place.

From the Columbus Enquirer.]

CHARLESTON, Sept. 1, '63.

Editor Inquirer:—Gen. Buckner's scouts brought him intelligence yesterday, while we were at Loudon, that a heavy force of the enemy were crossing the Tennessee river at the confluence of the Hiwassee. This being true no other alternative was left General Buckner but to fall back upon this place to prevent his being flanked, and recross the mountains into North Carolina.

Gen. Buckner's army is arriving here now. What our future movements will be has not the remotest idea; therefore it is idle to speculate thereon.

By the evacuation of East Tennessee we have lost millions of bushels of grain, and if not wasted from the hand of the enemy before December, we will lose millions of pounds of bacon. This to the soldier is indeed a hard blow; but with an undying faith in the justice of our cause, we will continue the fight until the last morsel of bread is consumed.

Special to the Mississippi.]

Condition of Vicksburg—Wives murdered on Deer Creek—Please killed on Baker's Creek—Girls kidnapped in Louisiana—Gen. Janiss removed—Letter from Price and Kirby Smith.

JACKSON, Sept. 5.—Our latest advices from Vicksburg say there is no abatement in the sickness in that city. The upper laters are now garrisoned by negroes. The new lines of fortifications around the city have been commenced, the houses in the way being torn down.

Information from Deer Creek says that a gang of mounted negroes are going through the country killing all the white men. Among the killed are Joe Clarke, brother of General Clark, Fann, Hill, Fore, Johnson, Hewitt and Stines.

The Yankees listen to the stories of their atrocities with perfect complacency.

A planter named Vaughan, living seven miles from Raymond, near Baker's Creek, was shot dead on Thursday, while sitting in his gallery. It is thought he was assassinated by negroes.

Gen. Janiss went down the river from Vicksburg on Monday evening. McPherson commands Vicksburg; Sherman, Bridgeport; and Osterhaus being back.

Gen. Janiss has been removed, it is said, on account of legency to the people.

The Yankees picket across four miles east of Big Blue.

It is reported that the expedition that went west of the Mississippi has been worsened by Price and Kirby Smith. The latter fell on the Yankees near Marion, La.

It is said that there are not more than eight or ten thousand troops between Vicksburg and Big Black, and the Yankees are considerably alarmed about Gen. Lee, fearing that he will make a dash into the city with his cavalry.

Special dispatch to the Mobile Advertiser.]

SATURDAY, Sept. 8.—Price has had a very light and been victorious, near Bayou Maurice, fifteen miles west of Little Rock. No details of the affair can be obtained.

Persons just from Memphis report that Hurlbut will not allow his papers to publish anything about it, and that reinforcements are being sent to Arkansas.

There is but a very small force at Memphis.

The Chicago Tribune of August 29th is received. Its special correspondent from Washington, under date of August 27th says:

A special agent sent by the navy department to England has returned and reports a host of Confederate iron-clads already built and enroute across the ocean. They are, beyond doubt, making for Charleston to raise the blockade.

Thirteen vessels of the largest and most powerful kind are in a state of completion; some possessing rams, others two turrets, iron and steel plated. All are seaworthy, and in speed any iron-clads afloat. The others so soon as completed are destined to operate against New York, Boston and Philadelphia.

There is a great flutter in the Navy Department.

The falling of sales of U. S. five-twenty is really alarming. The cause is said to be deficiency of the War Department in raising funds.

The correspondent predicts an abrupt conclusion of the war, unless a change occurs, a ridiculous and gloomy prospect.

A special dispatch to the Times from New Orleans of the 25th ult., says:

Operations commence against Mobile in three weeks.

The attack is to be made by three corps, under Franklins, Orton and Heron—the whole commanded by Banks.

It is reported that Gen. Grant is en route to relieve Banks of the command of the Gulf.

Gunsboats are preparing to leave New Orleans to attack Fort Morgan.

Pascagoula will be the principal base by land.

The Charleston correspondent of the Mobile Tribune says:

"We have good news that two immense guns, the weight a projectile of 651 pounds, have arrived in Wilmington, from England, and will soon be placed in battery at some point in our harbor. We shall shortly be able to give the enemy a taste of their quality, and if the tories should venture close in range of them, she will be up to turn inside out! Just imagine what might a shell of 656 pounds or a solid shot would make through the air, coming from these little humaning birds!"

ANOTHER SOLDIER GONE.

Capt. John M. Teague, son of Joshua and Nancy Teague, was born in the State of S. C. Alcoville Dist., July 21st, 1820.

While in the twelfth year of his age, his parents moved to Calhoun county, Ala., where he spent his juvenile days. After having arrived to years of manhood, he was a generous and social, which caused him to be the admiration of those by whom he was surrounded.

February 2d, 1851, he married Miss Margaret Caldwell. He made an affectionate husband and loving father. His wife lived to give birth to a son, and Sept. 23d, 1852, it pleased God to take him from him by death. He submitted to his bereavement with resignation and bore it with meekness.

April 13th, 1851, he married Miss Sarah Jane Luckey. He also proved to her a tender and affectionate husband; and to his children a industrious and lovely father. But notwithstanding his loss of home, companion and children, he loved his country and her institutions; he appreciated the liberty won for us by the life-blood of our ancestors. The love of this burned upon the altar of his soul, and induced him to tender his services to his country, in order to drive back an invading and formidable adversary, who threatened to ride triumphantly into power over the bones of our slain.

May the 8th, 1862, he was elected as 2d Lieut., and mustered into the service of the Confederate States for three years or during the war. The company was received into the 44th Regt. Ala. Vol. So soon after the regiment was organized, he was ordered to resign. Lieut. Teague's officer, using such authority as commanded him to be loved by all, by which he was surrounded. He was soon promoted as Capt. of Co. K, 44th Ala. Regt.

His deportment as a Captain was such as commanded the love and esteem of his men; they looked upon him as their leader and protector. He participated in a number of hard fought battles, in one of which he was severely wounded, with the enemy's balls, but not seriously wounded. When Gen. Lee's army received orders to march (they knew not whether, but time soon demonstrated where they were going) into the the enemy's country, Capt. Teague was one who with fortitude submitted to the privations and hardships incident to that noble army during that march. At Gettysburg the mauling thunder of belching cannon, (indicative of blood and death) announced the approaching conflict; and in the midst of a tornado of bullets, shot and shell, (when every sound seemed as premonitory thunder of coating ruin,) he was heard to cheer his men, and give the command "Forward!" In leading a gallant charge upon a battery, as it belched forth its lurid flames, he fell on the 2d July, pierced by a missile ball, which caused instant death, and was buried on a lonely hilltop in an enemy's land, where he will rest undisturbed until his funeral shall sound and bid the deadman. In his last letters to his companion he said "I feel I should fall if that all will be well." He admonished his wife, if he fell, to tell his children that he fell in the defense of his country; for the protection of their rights and the preservation of their liberties. Capt. John M. Teague is gone. He has sacrificed his life upon the altar of his country. He has left a wife and five children.

May God be a husband to the widow and a father to the orphans; may he sanctify their bereavement to the good of their souls—

"Liberty or death," he has always cried, At his post he wished to stand; And in our glorious cause he now has died. In an enemy's distant land.

Sweetly may his ashes rest.

Until he is bid arise;

Then may he be among the blest,

Where freedom never dies.

JOHN A. SCOTT.

CORN GROVE, ALA., August 25th, 1863.

DIED—At his residence at Blue Mountain, Calhoun county, Ala., on the 22d day of August 1862, Mr. Samuel P. Hudon.

The deceased was born the 26th April, 1811, in Greenville, S. C. He remained in South Carolina until 1835, when he removed to this county, where he has since resided. Mr. Hudon was one of the oldest and most useful citizens of our county. Energetic, persevering and upright in all his transactions, benevolent and warmly attached to his friends, his loss will be severely felt in his community, which had known him so long and so well. But to his family his death is indeed a sad and irreparable calamity. A more affectionate husband or a more indulgent parent never lived; may God protect and reward his soul.

Mr. Hudon never attached himself to any church but had been follower of Christ from his youth, and met the dread summons, as he had lived; calmly and with a will resigned to the dispensation of his Heavenly Father.

JACKSONVILLE, ALA.

September 19, 1863.

From Charleston. Glorious News.

We mentioned last week the noble defense of this glorious old city, but was compelled to wind it up with an acknowledgement of the evacuation of batteries Wagner and Gregg, against which so many tons of powder and metal had been expended. But here it was said the difficulties and dangers of the Yankees had just commenced and it has proven to be true.

The news received since is of most cheering character. An attempt by the Yankees to take Fort Sumter by assault, has met with a most signal repulse and defeat, with no casualties on the side of the defenders of the Fort, which was the Charleston Battalion, commanded by Maj. Stephen Elliott.

Four of the fifty barges in which the enemy approached were captured, together with three stand of colors, 18 commissioned officers and one hundred and four rank and file. One of the flags captured was the same which Maj. Anderson was compelled to lower, and which Dahlgren, the Yankee commander, hoped to replace. This must have rendered their defeat doubly humiliating.

We have seen a number of letters from soldiers in the army, which complain very justly of the spirit manifested by a large number of people at home, by their votes, as well as in some of their letters to the army. It is feared by the soldiers that there is too great a disposition to obtain peace on any terms, even to reconstruction, were such a thing possible; but the soldiers know it is not. They say this feeling is not shared by the army, nor indeed any doubt or distrust of final success; and that while they are willing to endure the privations, hardships and dangers of the campaign, it is as little as the people at home can do to abstain from complaint and patiently await the issue.

We have carefully perused a well written communication in the Richmond Examiner, headed "The Women and the War," which contains some important suggestions, which we hope will in future be heeded by the ladies who have heretofore unintentionally done considerable injury, and caused serious discontent and insubordination in the army. It is stated by the author, that serious discontent, unhappiness, insubordination and desertion have been caused by the mothers, wives and sweethearts of soldiers writing them urgent letters to come home even if for a very short visit. These letters can aid them in no possible way to obtain furloughs, and can only render them discontented and unhappy. This has become so common, that it is said the officers can tell, without enquiry, by the countenance of the men, when they have received these unfortunate and urgent home letters. The writer gives all due credit to the ladies of the Confederacy for their patriotism, tenderness, care and attention to the sick and attributes this error of theirs altogether to their thoughtlessness, as to the effect, and inability to aid in the accomplishment of the object desired. Instances have occurred where soldiers have been condemned to the ball and chain and others to be shot for desertion, who stated in the hour of execution, that letters from wife or mother caused them to commit the crime.

Will not the patriotic ladies of the Confederacy, who have won the admiration of the civilized world by their constancy, devotion and attention, reflection on this subject, and cease to do that which might cause the sacrifice of the lives of those they love best upon earth.

In the notice of religious revival in our paper of week before last, a mistake occurred in the names of two of the ministers named, in the meeting in Terry's Rangers. It should have been Rev. R. Bunting, instead of Bunting, and Rev. Kaufman, instead of Hoffmann.

The meeting in this place closed on Sunday night, the 6th inst., and one of the ministers mentioned the supposed number of converts at from 70 to 75.

Public Meeting in Aid of Indigent families of Soldiers.

A friend has sent us a slip from Talladega paper, containing the proceedings of a public meeting held in that town, for the purpose above indicated, over which M. H. Crisshank presided, and M. Tami acted as Secretary. We regret that our limited space forbids the insertion of the entire article, as there are few subjects of more pressing necessity or more essential to our concord, unity and concert of action.

At this meeting there was subscribed on the spot, by liberal and patriotic citizens, $3,000 bushels of corn, 320 bushels of wheat, 31 sacks of salt, and $600 dollars in money; and we have understood that the subscriptions were afterwards increased to 15,000 bushels of grain.

We must earnestly urge our patriotic fellow citizens of Calhoun to follow immediately this noble example. The necessity for such action here is not less urgent—the good to be accomplished by it, in relieving the needy, and uniting heart and hand all our people, is certainly equal; and we will not believe, until convinced by action or non-action, that the people of Calhoun are less liberal and patriotic than those of any other county of the State. A people who vote so well, ought to prove their faith by their works; and on behalf of grain subscrivers, at a time like this, is a better evidence of the right spirit, than many good votes and loud professions of devotion to our country's cause.

We will not take the liberty to appoint a day of meeting for the purpose mentioned, but will take great pleasure in giving publicity to any appointment agreed upon by a number of citizens; and we will try to be on hand, ready and willing to do our part, feeling that we have discharged our duty to the noble cause of our country, as well as to justice and honor.

THE SOLDIER'S WIFE.

I'm sitting all alone my love—
The babes have gone to sleep;
And I am sad enough my love,
To hide my eyes and weep.

For when the friendly day is gone,
The lonely night will come;

It is sad—so sad to be alone
In a deserted home.

First, Kitty came with sunny hair—
Just like her pa's—and said,
With bowed head, her lipsing prayer,
Then went away to bed.

And then came little Minnie bright,
With folded weary wings;

She closed her dewy eyes of light,
The winsome sleepy thing.

And so I am all alone my love;

How now, can I refrain
From weeping, when I think my love

You may not come again.

Yet still, I would not have thee here,
I'd rather thou wouldest And

A glorious grave in battle there,
Than a home at home.

Then nobly do your duty love,
I'll bear this lonely life;

I'll be a brave dead soldier's love—
Before reward a wife.

For though my might whole ages seem,
And days draw on like years,

Bright rays of hope still after gleam
In beauty through my tears.

And as hope shines amid those fears,
It paints an ilk bright;

That rests in love upon the years

To come—God speed the right.

Yankee Military Despotism.

A correspondent of the New York Times after enumerating many acts of barbarity, by us to the "brute," Gen. Schenck, such as turning defenceless families out of doors, arresting mothers at a burial, theft, robbery, &c., etc., thus speaks of the treatment of Confederate prisoners at Fort Delaware:

If we turn to the treatment of wounded prisoners in our hospitals, shame must manifest itself when Fort Delaware is brought to our recollection. Between ten and eleven thousand prisoners are there confined, and these have been dying at the rate of seven to fifteen per day, because compelled to drink the brackish ditch water, which insures disease and almost certain death.—Such strong representations have been made by Federal surgeons of the brutality of this measure, that some water is now daily brought to our recollection.
